DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okada (JP 2002-17909) in view of Nishio (JP 2001-54594).

Regarding claim 7, Okada discloses a club head having an outer shell member, a hollow portion surrounded by the outer shell member, and a columnar neck having a shaft insertion hole wherein the hole is closed at a hollow portion side of the columnar neck member and the inner surface of the hollow portion includes concave and flat surfaces, the inner surface of the closed shaft portion being concave wherein the inner surfaces have no projections. Okada does not disclose the hosel being separate. Nishio discloses a clubhead having a hosel member separately attached to the outer shell (See Abstract). One having ordinary skill in the art would have found it obvious to have the hosel attached separately, as taught by Nishio, in order to increase the freedom in centroid design.

Regarding claim 9, see the above regarding claim 7. In addition, it is common within the art to have a shaft having a grip attached to club head.

Claims 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the prior art applied to claims 7 and 9 above in view of MacKay, Jr. (USPN 5904628).

Regarding claim 10 and 11, the claims are directed to a product by process. MacKay, Jr. discloses a club head having an inflatable bladder therein the shell that is inflated. Mackay, Jr. notes that when the bladder expands it presses outer panels against inner panel to form a seal. One having ordinary skill in the art would have found it obvious to use a bladder to form the club head, as taught by MacKay, Jr., in order to improve the feel of the club head.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 7, 9, 10, and 11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
